Microeconomic theory is the study of individual decisions – typically consumers and firms – in the presence of constraints. In this class we will explore how and why economic agents make these decisions. The models and techniques presented in this course are used by every economist in every field of economics, and by the end of the class, you will have acquired the tools to advance further in the study of economics and to better understand the microeconomic foundations of the world around you.

I do not take attendance in this class to make whether attending is worth your while. That said, it is crucial that you make the effort to attend every lecture. I do not distribute my notes, so if you do miss a lecture, you should talk to a classmate about getting the notes you missed or come see me at office hours.
