

Departmental Action Teams

DAT

A DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department. The DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department.

The DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department. The DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department.

CEPCE

Our CEPCE is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department. The CEPCE is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department.

1. Support the department's goals and objectives.
2. Work with the department to improve the quality of the program.
- 3.

The DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department. The DAT is a group of faculty members from different departments who meet regularly to discuss and address issues related to the department.

Our approach involves adapting organizational change literature that was primarily developed in business settings to higher education. Additionally, we conduct ongoing research on the DAT model to iteratively design and test its effectiveness. Products from this research can be used to guide educational reform at other institutions.

- Improved climate for women and underrepresented minorities
- Restructured a course sequence to better support majors' transition to upper division
- Provided instructors with dedicated time for cross-course coordination

The DAT cultivates a departmental culture that is open to continuously improving undergraduate education. This benefits